

Calling All DigiTales Camp Storytellers!

Experience an adventurous multi-day DigiTales Storytelling Camp!

This unique artistic learning retreat is designed to immerse adults in a very personal experience of crafting digital stories using images, sound, memorabilia, voice, and graphics to create a 3-5 minute movie. Prior to coming prepare a one-page draft (500 or less words) of a narrative tale that tells your personal story of a defining moment in your life sharing what meaning or lesson it gave your life to a circle of friends. Review the Take Six:

Elements of a Good Story as you craft your story. There will be time to fine-tune your story on our first day. No prior experience with technology needed. The book, DigiTales: the Art of Telling Digital Stories will be part of the registration materials. We will learn our way through making the story during the workshop. That's part of the fun!

Bring 20 - 30 images, you will choose 15-20 images or memorabilia items (photos, video clips, art work, report cards) as principal images that will unfold your tale. If you scan images, use no less than 200 dpi and bring on a CD disk. Video uses a LOT of memory so you will want to use video efficiently in small 5-15 second clips. Project time is included in day two of the workshop to learn software, gather media resources and record voiceovers. Day three will be used to weave your story into a digital movie. You won't want to miss the group showing on late afternoon of day three - it's a really BIG show!

ALL materials used need to be copyright cleared - permissions secured for legal use of resources required. All participants will be asked to sign a release slip taking responsibility for using legal or copyright friendly media resources.

Given different our learning styles, some are more prepared and organized than others. Wherever anyone one is when entering our DigiTales StoryMaking time will be exactly right . . .we begin from there.

Expect to make new friends, learn a lot, have fun and leave enchanted with new skills for making your next digital stories-
